who had treated Mr. Gates, testified that the bones had never knit and that they could not be made to knit without an operation by taking a plece of bone from the shin to graft in where the break in the arm is.

John Charles Lay was followed on the stand by Dr. E. C. Chapman of New London, who said he arrived at the accident eight minutes after he got a telephone call, and the lights on the Geer automobile were not lighted when he got there and he spoke to Mr. Geer about it. The doctor described the breten arm and other injuries to Mr. Gates and related the treatment given the broken.

The witness said. He had been travelling on the right side of the road before it was hit by the automobile. He testified he had had the lights of his automobile burning since he left the Golden Spur.

The witness denied that Dr. Chipman said anything to him about the lights on the car. He said the lights did not so out after the collision nor did he put them out.

Court adjourned for the day with the paintiff still on the stand.

There are 1,500 fewer deaths in Connecticut from tuberculosis annually than them were in 1884. The warfare against the disease has cut the death rate squazely in two, leaving just half the fatilities from the White Plague which were recorded when the campaign started thirty-seven years ago. The state tuberculosis commission firmly believes that the death toll will be continued if the disease can be beamed in by the tuberculosia experts, sanstoria, clinics, and nurses.

H. O'Nell of New London. Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was called to attend the man and had him removed to the Backus hospital.

It was found that his injuries consist of a slight contusion of the head, torn nall on the thungh of the left hand, abrazions on both knees and lacerations on both legs and left hald. After his injuries had been dressed Mr. Hillman was removed to his home.

Mr. Hillman, who is a well known former hack dwier, was walking up Broadway on the westerly side. When in front of the City Lunch he stepped from the curb to walk across the street. Mr. O'Neil, who is a shoe salesman, had just turned into Broadway with his Ford sedan.

Mr. Hillman saw the machine coming and thinking he did not have time to set. services.
Under cross examination by Attorney Hadiai A. Hull Mr. Sullivan admitted that as the man in charge of Mr. Plaint's fin ancial affairs, he was informed as to ti that he knew about the investments and condition of companies in the south in which Mr. Plant was interested.

"You didn't have to search much to find out about the condition of these companies, did you, Mr. Suillvan?" inuiredo Major Hull and Mr. Suillvan admitted that he did not.

"Mr. Plant had no office other than the one which is now the estate office did he? asked Attorney Hull.

"No" was the answer.
Mr. Suilivan admitted that securities of the estate were at the office and that all other stocks and bonds of the estate Mr. Hillman saw the machine coming were in that office.

"It didn't require much search around to find them did it?" the witness was asked and he replied that it did not.

Mr. Sullivan admitted that the United States Trust So. as a trust company was one of the executors kept in touch with the market regarding the securities of the estate and he also admitted that appraises had been hired and gaid to appraise the estate at Eastern Point and New York.

The new trunk line highway between Hartford and New London which is to be opened today, December 1st, by the state highway department, will mean a saving of four miles for Norwich autoists making the trip to Hartford from this city. To reach the new road from Norwich autolets must drive through Yantlo and Fitchville to Colchester where they will branch onto the trunk line highway. There was much discussion over the is a just and reasonable charge for the services actually rendered in the manage ment and settlement of the estate.
